In Stardew Valley, there are two ways to spawn items into the game. The first method involves naming an animal with the IDs of up to three desired items, surrounded by square brackets. For instance, buying a chicken and naming it [645][446][163] would yield an Iridium Sprinkler, a Rabbit's Foot, and the Legend Fish. The second method requires naming your character with the IDs of up to three desired items, also surrounded by square brackets, and then interacting with a villager who says your name in their dialogue, such as Gus at the Stardrop Saloon. For example, naming your character [330] would spawn clay whenever a villager mentions your name. Note that since character names cannot be changed in Stardew Valley, this method can only be used to spawn up to three types of items per game. To spawn items, you must use a cheat by setting your character's name or an animal's name to the item code surrounded by [ and ]. You can use an animal's name by visiting Marnie's Ranch, purchasing an animal like a chicken, and naming it with the item code, such as [915] for a pressure nozzle. Alternatively, you can set your character's name to the item code when creating your save, but this method is limited since character names can only be set once at the start of the game. Whenever a villager says your name in dialogue, you will receive the corresponding item. This cheat method applies to various items, including poppy, which can be spawned by naming an animal [376] or setting your character's name to [376] when creating your save. For more detailed guidance on spawning items, refer to the available guides. Visit Marnie's Ranch, purchase an animal from Marnie and name it [201] then press OK to receive the complete breakfast item. Spawn Using Character Name, use your character's name only once at game start for this method. To spawn items in Stardew Valley, set your character or animal name to item code surrounded by [ ] when using cheat.
