How to cheat eevee evolution. Pokemon go eevee evolution cheat names. Best overall eevee evolution pokemon go. Most common eevee evolution pokemon go.

A hidden reference to the TV show allows you choose which Eeveelution you'll receive. How to evolve Eevee continues to be one of the bigger talking points in Pokémon Go. In the classic Pokémon games, Eevee can evolve into different typing varieties - referred to as Eeveelutions by fans - based on the use of special items, its happiness level, moves it has available and even the time of day. With Candy in Pokémon Go, the way you evolve Pokémon is much simpler, and as such, you cannot use the tried-and-tested method of using one of three elemental stones to turn Eevee into Flareon, Jolteon and Vaporeon or the alternative methods for Umbreon, Espeon, Leafeon, Glaceon and Sylveon. After you've gathered enough Eevee Candy, we recommend visiting our Buddy Adventure and Lure Modules explainers as both impact which Eeveelution your Eevee becomes - including a neat trick will get you the evolution you need by using a special Eevee name. On this page: Here's how Eevee evolutions work. If you choose to evolve Eevee without any meddling - by feeding it 25 Eevee candy - then it'll turn to Vaporeon, Jolteon or Flareon at random. However, players have discovered a trick that allows you to target any of Sylveon, Leafeon, Glaceon, Espeon, Umbreon, Flareon, Jolteon or Vaporeon by using one of the following Eevee names: Rename Eevee as Kira to evolve into fairy-type Sylveon Rename Eevee as Linnea to evolve into leaf-type Leafeon Rename Eevee as Rea to evolve into ice-type Glaceon Rename Eevee as Sakura to evolve into psychic-type Espeon Rename Eevee as Tamao to evolve into dark-type Umbreon Rename Eevee as Rainer to evolve into water-type Vaporeon Rename Eevee as Sparky to evolve into lightning-type Jolteon Rename Eevee as Pyro to evolve into fire-type Flareon Important note - the trick only works once per evolution type, so make sure you choose Eeveelutes with the best CP values before you evolve them into the type you want. Thank you to redwineandbeer from reddit for confirming the nickname for Sylveon. That said, for select Eevee evolutions, its possible to get the specific types you want through a second method... Sylveon was finally released into Pokémon Go on May 25th, 2021 as part of the Luminous Legends Y event. Though it can only be used once, the easiest way to evolve an Eevee into Sylveon is to change its nickname to Kira and ensure you have at least 25 Eevee Candy. Before you press evolve, however, make sure the silhouette for Sylveon is on the evolve button - if it's not then you're Eevee may evolve into a different Eeveelution. Eevee evolution Sylveon. If this does occur for the you, it can be easily fixed by closing Pokémon Go and opening it again. Once you've used the name trick, Eevee can be evolved into Sylveon by earning 70 Buddy hearts with it, which means your chosen Eevee needs to be at Great Buddy Level. Swapping buddies will not reset your progress towards Sylveon, so feel free to change your Buddy Pokémon freely. You'll also still need 25 Eevee Candy. This evolution method is in keeping with how you must have a high friendship level with an Eevee, along with it knowing a fairy-type move, if you wish to evolve it into a Sylveon in the main-line series. Don't worry about Eevee evolving into Espeon or Umbreon instead, because, thanks to gamewith pkgo from Twitter, we know Sylveon will appear as a separate evolution option, allowing you to pick the correct Eeveelution. — ポケモンGO攻略@GameWith (@gamewith_pkgo) May 26, 2021 To see this content please enable targeting cookies. You can also evolve a shiny or flower crown Eevee to earn yourself a shiny or flower crown Sylveon. The Season of Light has arrived! With it comes the new special research quest, A Cosmic Companion. Elsewhere, be sure to use Daily Adventure Incense for the chance of encountering Galarian Articuno, Galarian Zapdos and Galarian Moltres. There's also a new special research quest - A Mysterious Incense. The Go Fest 2022 Finale also brought us two new quests - Willow's Return and A Radiant Reunion. Don't forget about the new Prime Gaming rewards every fortnight. Gen 4's Leafeon and Glaceon have a second Eevee evolution method, by using the Mossy Lure or Glacial Lure respectively. When you're in range of that PokéStop with the Lure enabled, go to your Eevee and choose the Evolution. Meanwhile, Gen 2's Umbreon and Espeon also have a second Eevee evolution method. Walk your Eevee as a Buddy for 10km, then evolve it either during the night (Umbreon) or day (Espeon) and it'll turn into the desired evolution. Note you specifically need to walk 10k and earn two Candies in the process, then keep Eevee as your Buddy when evolving, and be either day or night during the game itself for it to work (thanks to Daviebruce72 on reddit for clarifying). Since the naming trick only works once per evolution type, this appears to be a useful way to get a second Espeon or Umbreon with some reliability. What is the best Eevee evolution in Pokémon Go? If you have a high stat Eevee, you'll want to make the most out of it and choose the best possible evolution available. This depends on your needs, of course - but it's clear some are more useful than others. Umbreon is particularly useful in some Battle Leagues. Our picks for the best Eevee evolutions in Pokémon Go are Sylveon, Espeon, Umbreon and Glaceon. Sylveon and Espeon are among the best of their respective types - Fairy and Psychic - and though they aren't the most powerful (especially when considering Legendaries) Eevee has one advantage - being easy to find, meaning you'll plenty of opportunities to catch and get Eevee Candy. In short, Sylveon and Espeon are superb budget Fairy and Psychic picks to help round off any line-up. Though not the best of their types, if we're thinking budget picks are what Eevee is good for, then Glaceon fits the bill, especially as there are few ice types available year round. Meanwhile, Umbreon is a useful Battle League choice at lower leagues such as Great League; its attacks will be super effective against both Ghost and Psychic-type Pokémon, and will really hold its own against fairy attacks, a Battle League staple. Why Sakura, Tamao, Sparky, Rainer and Pyro? The original three are the names of the Eevee brothers from the Pokémon anime, who meet with Ash and the gang in episode 40 to show off their respective Eeveelutions. Espeon and Umbreon also take their nicknames from the Pokémon anime, but their characters are human not Pokémon. In Trouble's Brewing - the 26th episode of Pokémon: Johto League Champions - Ash and the gang meet the five Kimono sisters of Ecruteak City. Each of these sisters partners with an Eeveelution - Sakura with Espeon and Tamao with Umbreon. If you've played Pokémon Silver, Gold, Crystal, Heartgold or Soulsilver, then you may remember battling the Kimono sisters yourself! All the Eevee evolutions are available in Pokémon Go. Leafeon and Glaceon, however, take their names from trainers in Pokémon Sun and Moon rather than the anime. You'll encounter these two trainers in your quest to earn the Eevium Z - Linnea, of course, has Leafeon in her team and Rea has Glaceon. Finally, Sylveon also takes it's nickname - Kira - from one of the Eevium Z trainers. Though, if you're a Death Note fan, this name will have a different meaning for you... Once you have called your Eevee into one of the above names, you should quit and reload the app to double check the name change has taken place, which is important considering the servers can lean to be on the unreliable side. Once you've double checked the new name is indeed in place, then evolve the Eevee as you would any other Pokémon by feeding it Candy, and it should take the form of your chosen type. Action Adventure Android Anime iOS MMO Mobile Niantic Pokémon Go Eevee Evolutions are a regular topic of conversation for Pokemon fans - and at long last, in Pokémon Go the conversation is no longer about when the next one will be added to the game - they're all available! No matter who your favorite is, you can now have them on your team - and on this page, we talk about how to evolve Eevee in Pokemon Go. Eevee is one of the coolest Pokémon. It's one of the cutest of the original Red/Blue/Green generation of Pokemon games, yes, and it's just been promoted to starter status for Pokemon Let's Go - but the coolest thing about Eevee is how it evolves. Eevee can evolve into more different Pokemon than any other species discovered so far - and of course that carries over to Pokemon Go. From the newest Eeveelution, Fairy-type Sylveon, to the original elemental three, Jolteon, Flareon and Vaporeon, there are guaranteed ways to get each and every evolution - here's what to do. To see this content please enable targeting cookies. Eevee Evolutions in Pokemon Go: Sylveon, Glaceon, Leafeon, Umbreon, Espeon, Vaporeon, Flareon and Jolteon Eevee Evolution is meant to be a random process in Pokemon Go. Once you press evolve on an Eevee, you have a random chance of getting one of the original three eeveelutions. The others can be obtained through other means, all of which require a bit of effort. There's also some useful shortcuts and cheats of a sort to get around the random factor. We'll detail all of that below. There's seven Eevee Evolutions in the game so far. Vaporeon, Jolteon and Flareon from generation 1 are completely down to random chance. Umbreon and Espeon from generation 2 and Leafeon and Glaceon from generation 3 are obtained in specific ways. The final Eevee Evolution is Sylveon, from generation 6, and it was finally added to the game in May 2021. So, which Eevee Evolution do you want? You'll want to carefully consider this - each evolved form of Eevee is a different type, so you'll want to consider strengths and weaknesses with our Pokemon Go Type Chart, at least. Plus which you think is cutest. How to evolve using Nicknames to guarantee your choice of Eevee Evolution If you evolve an Eevee 'raw' by spending 25 candy, it'll just evolve into one of the different available evolutions at random. However, you can actually force a specific evolution by renaming your Eevee of choice to a special nickname - and the whole thing began as an easter egg nod to a classic set of Eevee evolutions found in the Pokemon anime TV show. So, basically, all you have to do is rename your Eevee to a specific name and then evolve it the regular way by spending 25 candy. Here are the names and the Eevee Evolutions: Eevee EvolutionImageName to EvolveTypeEevee (#133) Original Form..NormalVaporeon (#134) RainerWaterJolteon (#135) Sparky ElectricFlareon (#136) Pyro FireEspeon (#190) SakuraPsychicUmbreon (#197) Tamao DarkLeafeon (#470) LinneaGrassGlaceon (#471) ReaIceSylveon (#700) KiraFairy An important note about this little cheat: it only works once per Eevee Evolution. Once you've renamed one Eevee as Tamao to get Umbreon, for instance, you'll only be able to get another Umbreon through 'natural' means - with that exact method depending on the eeveelution in question. This is why you should check your CP values and IV values before evolving an Eevee - make sure it's a good one, as you only get one shot. To see this content please enable targeting cookies. How to Evolve into Espeon and Umbreon The first time you want to get your hands on Espeon and Umbreon, you can use the name trick detailed above. Evolve an Eevee called Tamao to get an Umbreon, or an Eevee named Sakura to evolve it into Espeon. After that, you'll need to evolve them the old-fashioned way, by completing certain goals. For Espeon and Umbreon, you can also evolve into them based on their in-game method of evolution in Pokemon Gold and Silver back on the Game Boy - based on the time of day. In order to do this, you'll first need to build a relationship with your Eevee. Set them as your buddy Pokemon and walk with them as much as you can. Once you've walked 10km with that Eevee as your buddy Pokemon, it's ready to evolve into either Espeon or Umbreon. Just evolve in the day for Espeon and night for Umbreon - and this isn't limited, you can do it as often as you like! How to get and use the Glacial Lure & Mossy Lure to get Glaceon and Leafeon The final current Eeveelutions available in Pokemon Go are Glaceon and Leafeon, and this duo has the most specific evolution method yet. First of all, don't forget that you can do the name trick once again to get Glaceon and Leafeon for the first time. As detailed above, name your Eevee Rea to have it evolve to Glaceon, and name your Eevee Linnea to have it evolve to Leafeon. After that, however, you'll need to fulfil special requirements to evolve more of these Pokemon. Specifically, in order to evolve more Eevee into Glaceon or Leafeon, you'll need some new items: the Glacial Lure and the Mossy Lure. These two new types of Lure Module are available in the shop and will soon be appearing as Field Research Rewards. These lures exist to make you more able to catch different Pokemon - the Glacial lures in Water and Ice type Pokemon, while the Mossy attracts Bug and Grass types. (As an aside, the Magnetic Lure has no impact on Eevee Evolution, but also attracts Electric, Steel and Rock Pokemon.) There's an added benefit to these, however: when they're placed, they can impact Eevee Evolution. Simply place one of the lures in a Pokéstop; if you place the Mossy Lure you'll be able to evolve any Eevee you have into Leafeon while standing in that Pokéstop's radius (close enough to spin it). If you place the Glacial Lure on a Pokéstop, that's when you'll be able to evolve into Glaceon - just remain within the Pokéstop's radius. This works even if you didn't place the lure, too, so you can share this chance with other players. How to Evolve Eevee into Sylveon in Pokemon Go Pokemon Go currently has Pokemon from several generations... and the most recent Eevee Evolution added to the game is Sylveon, a Pokemon added in generation 6. In the main Pokemon games, Sylveon evolves based off your Affection and Friendship stats, which maps to the Pokemon Buddy Feature that Pokemon Go has. First of all, the nickname trick continues to work with Sylveon. To get it first, take an Eevee and rename it to Kira - then evolve it. The first time you do this, you'll get a Sylveon. After this, however, you'll have to evolve into Sylveon in the traditional way, as this is a one-time trick per eeveelution. For further chances to evolve Eevee to Sylveon, you'll need to get 70 Buddy Hearts with an Eevee - which puts your relationship with that Pokemon at the 'Great Buddy' level. After this, you simply need to evolve that Eevee with 25 Eevee candy, and you'll get the fairy-type Sylveon in return. All of these work with the Flower Crown Eevee or Shiny Eevee - so you can use these tricks to get yourself a Shiny Sylveon or a Flower Crown Sylveon. How to get Shiny Eevee Evolutions If you want to get your hands on a Shiny Eevee Evolution, there's unfortunately only really one way to do it - to catch one when they spawn in the wild, or to likewise catch or otherwise get your hands on a shiny Eevee and then use one of the methods on this page to evolve it to the Eeveelution of your choice. That might mean that you want to hold off on using the name method of evolving Eevee in order to get a guaranteed shiny Eevee evolution - otherwise, you're going to be waiting and crossing your fingers for the gods of random chance to shine on you, at least for the truly random evolution options. Good luck... Which is the best Eeveelution? Eevee Evolutions Ranked If you've got your hands on only one or two Eevee, you're thus faced with a difficult choice: which of the five Eevee Evolution forms you can currently get is the best one to have? Several of the Eevee Evolutions rank decently in our list of the Best Pokemon for battles in Pokemon Go - in Attack Espeon is ranked 13th and Flareon 18th, while in Defense Umbreon clocks in at 16th. Vaporeon ranks a respectable 10th in HP and Stamina, too - but those are just basic stats. What about beyond that? Pokemon Types are of course absolutely vital in Pokemon Go, and an important thing to consider is how each Eevee Evolution ranks when compared to other Pokemon of its type - and also how easy they are to obtain compared to their powerful peers. Let's take a look at that: Flareon isn't as powerful as Moltres or Entei, but those two are legendary Pokemon that can't be found, caught or powered up as easily. It's still definitely the best non-legendary fire Pokemon option in the game, all things considered. Vaporeon is beaten by both Kyogre and Gyarados. Kyogre is another legendary, and Gyarados - which is far more difficult to evolve from the lowly Magikarp - is only a hair more powerful overall. It's a great water Pokemon option alongside something like a Blastoise with a good IV. Jolteon doesn't rank on the best Pokemon list but finds itself in a similar situation to Flareon - it's a great, viable electric-type Pokemon that's only really hand-over-fist beaten by Zapdos and Raikou, legendary beasts. Espeon has fewer rivals in the Psychic-type category, but it still has two legendary Pokemon to compete with - Mewtwo and Latios. It is predictably worse than this pair, but is on the whole superior to most other Psychic Pokemon in the game. Umbreon finds itself as one of the best Dark-type Pokemon in the game. In fact, it's only really bested in super effective damage output by Tyrantitar, a third evolution and one of the best Pokemon in the game in general. Any other Dark-type Pokemon can't hold a candle to it. Leafeon is a solid grass-type Pokemon with some decent moves; it's stronger than the likes of Venusaur, Torterra and Roserade, but is inferior to the likes of Exeggutor (including its Alolan form), Shaymin and Legendary Celebi. Glaceon is definitely the stronger of the gen 4 evolutions for Eevee; it ranks as one of the better ice-type Pokemon in the game, only really behind Mammoswine and legendary Pokemon Regice and Articuno. It outclasses the likes of Weavile and Jynx with ease. The story behind Pokemon Go's Eevee Evolution names If you're wondering where the above names come from, they're actually a deep-cut nod to fans of the Pokemon anime - a nice little easter egg for players who have been particularly dedicated in their following of the series. Rainer, Sparky, Pyro, Sakura and Tamao are actually the names of the 'Eevee brothers' that appear in the Pokemon anime. The first three Eevee evolutions and their owners - all siblings - show up in episode 40 of the show, meeting Ash and Pikachu. Each brother has a unique Eevee of his own, and it's after the brothers that the Eevee take their names. Sakura later has an Espeon of her own later on in the series - thus that nickname - and Tamao, one of the five Kimono sisters, uses an Espeon. For Glaceon and Leafeon, the names Linnea (Leafeon) and Rea (Glaceon) are taken from NPCs that use those eeveelutions in the Eevium Z quest of Pokemon Sun & Moon. That's all the names explained!
