Allow Chrome to install unknown apps by going to Settings > Apps > Menu > Special access > Install unknown apps. Install a file manager (like Cx File Explorer or File Manager) so you can find the apk file on your phone as you download it. Download the APK file and open it to install. Or transfer the APK installer from PC via USB. If you want to use apps outside of the Google Play Store, you can install the app's APK file. This article explains how to install APK files on Android 7 or higher. Before you can download APK files using Chrome or any other browser, you must first allow unknown apps: Open your device's settings and tap Apps & notifications (or apps on older Android versions). Tap on the three dots in the top right corner. Tap Special access. Tap Install unknown programs. Tap Chrome (or whatever web browser you're using) Move Allow from this source to On. After setting up your phone to install unknown apps, you need to find the app file (APK file) on your phone to run it. Android phones usually have a file manager app that you can use. However, if you don't have one, search Google Play for one of the best Android file managers. For example, you can download Cx File Explorer or File Manager. The easiest way to install an APK file on Android is to download the file using the default Chrome browser. Find the website that offers the Android app and tap the link to download the APK file. Accept all pop-ups including "This type of file may harm your device". Only download APK files from trusted sources. A quick Google search can often tell if an app (or the company that makes it) has a questionable reputation. If your phone's web browser won't let you open the file after downloading it, open the file browser app, go to the Downloads folder on your device, and then tap the APK file. Grant the app any necessary permissions it's asking for. Next,At the bottom of the installer window, click Install. You will now see the available application in the list of installed programs. If your phone doesn't have internet access or for some other reason you can't use a browser to download the file, you can still install apps from your computer. Using a web browser on your computer, download the APK file as described above. After downloading, connect to your Android phone and transfer the file. If you have never connected your Android device to PC, please enable USB debugging mode on Android. Then you can connect the phone to the computer with a USB cable and it will connect the phone as a memory card. When the phone is connected to the computer, it will appear as a different drive in the computer browser. Move the APK file you downloaded from the app's website to your phone's /sdcard/download folder. After transferring the file, use your phone's file browser app as described in the previous section, tap on the APK file and install the app. If you don't have a USB cable, another solution is to install a WiFi FTP server from Google Play. Then, using a free FTP client program on your computer (for example, download FileZilla), transfer the APK file from your computer to the phone's /sdcard/download folder. However, this is an advanced option that requires an understanding of how to use FTP files. If the APK installer doesn't launch after clicking, an advanced solution might work. You can install APK file on your Android device from PC using Minimal ADB and Fastboot tool. Connect your phone via USB and enable USB debugging. Download Minimal ADB and Fastboot on your computer and then install it. Run the tool and a command window will open. Once the phone is connected to the computer with a USB cable, type the adb device command. If the tool detects your phone, the device ID will appear in the list of connected devices. You are now ready to transfer the APK file. By usingIn File Explorer, locate the downloaded APK file on your computer. Right-click the file and select Copy. Using Windows File Explorer, navigate to the Minimal ADB and Fastboot folder (usually c:\Program Files (x86)\Minimal ADB and Fastboot\). Place the APK file in this folder. Rename the APK file to something short so you can easily enter it as a command. Back in the same command window you opened earlier, type the name of the adb installer app (replace with the name of the APK file). When you see the word Success, the app is installed on your phone. APK (Android Package Kit) is a type of file that installs an Android application. It is like an executable file (EXE) for Windows or a package installer (PKG) for Mac. If you've ever installed an Android app from the Google Play Store, you've used an APK file without realizing it. When you click the Install button, Google Play will automate transferring the APK file to your phone and running it for you. If the Android app you want to install is not available on Google Play, you can download the APK file from the Internet and install it manually. There are many sites where you can find installable apps that are not Google Play apps. For example, visit Apk Pure, Reddit Apk Directory or APKMirror. FAQ Can APK files damage your Android? Probably. Any file you download online can contain a virus, so it's important to only download APK files from safe sources. Can I delete APK files on my Android device? Yes, APK files are only used to install apps, so you can delete the APK file after installing the app. What is ConfigAPK for Android? ConfigAPK is pre-installed on Android devices. It is used to run APK files and install apps. Thanks for letting us know! Get the latest tech news every day Subscribe Tell us why!
